For the best burn experience, keep the following in mind:

 Crafted from recovered rosewood, this handcarved piece celebrates the unique qualities of its wood - from natural imperfections such as divets and holes, to the textured quality of its grain. Whether used as a side table, a stool, or a nightstand, it brings a touch of the outdoors inside, and serves as a perfect complement to a space that embraces the organic.
About Taracea
 Inspired by nature and committed to preserving her beauty, Taracea has used traditional artisanal methods to create striking furniture with strategically sourced wood for over 30 years. By recovering fallen and hurricane-tumbled trees without damaging their surrounding ecosystems - a process that can take years from start to finish - they rescue material that would have otherwise been wasted. This reclamation process allows Taracea to harness the wood's authentic character in their furniture designs, as each piece is individually processed to uncover its natural beauty. The wood is then entrusted to the skilled hands of master craftsmen: From aging techniques to hand-applied finishes and decorative touches, they suffuse each piece of furniture with centuries of tradition.
